

Creel, García-Cuéllar, Aiza y Enríquez and Martínez, Algaba, de Haro y Curiel are pleased to announce an agreement to combine their practices

Leveraging on a shared history, vision, and values, and a true partnership and collaborative model, the now forty-four strong partnership reaffirms its unwavering commitment to excellence by providing clients with the highest quality, full-service legal advice and solutions available in Mexico for the most complex matters.

"This combination was not only a great opportunity to add civil & commercial litigation to our disputes offering, a strategic objective we had been exploring for some time, but it was truly unique in that it allowed us to bring together what we believe is the deepest bench of top-rated talent in the litigation and dispute resolution space in Mexico." - Carlos Aiza, Senior Partner at Creel, García-Cuéllar, Aiza y Enríquez

"Considering our commonality of clients, values and collaborative culture, joining forces with the partners of Martínez, Algaba and their team presented itself as an exceptionally compelling and transformative opportunity we could not pass up. We could not be more excited in welcoming our new partners and colleagues to the Creel team." - Jean Michel Enríquez, Partner at Creel, García-Cuéllar, Aiza y Enríquez

"By combining forces with Creel, we elevate our litigation, arbitration, and bankruptcy practices to new levels of sophistication, strength, and reach within the Mexican legal market. We are excited to integrate the talent of both our teams to provide current and future clients with a practice of the most prestigious one-stop shop. We look forward to the challenges ahead with great enthusiasm now at Creel." - Javier Curiel, Partner at Martínez, Algaba, de Haro y Curiel
